LEARNING METHODOLOGY

Along the course, tasks will be designed to be developed inside and outside the classroom that allow students to practice communication and learning strategies. Moreover, the students’ resources will be assessed through the integrated observation of their linguistic performance and strategies during the academic period.

An integrated teaching-learning-assessment approach will be used, where students will need to devote time to autonomous learning outside the classroom, either on their own or in interaction with other students, and have access to a wide range of resources. This entails a continuous, multidimensional, contextualized, collaborative and learner-centered perspective, as well as the active role of the students. Preparation for lifelong learning requires a positive, responsible attitude, so learning strategies through reflexive processes will also be employed. Furthermore, the integral development of the students’ skills will include simulation activities that reproduce real, everyday contexts of application.

A number of teaching-learning strategies will be applied generically; including the following:

- Explanatory lessons
- Guided discussion
- Teamwork
- Individual work
- Practical activities
- Portfolio
- Simulation
- Readings
ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

The evaluation process determines the degree of a student’s achieved learning with regards to the competencies of the course in hand.

Students are able to request to be evaluated via a system of continuous, semester-long assessment or a single assessment at the end of each semester.

Continuous Assessment consists of the evaluation of the teaching-learning process based on the continuous monitoring of the student’s performance through the acquired comprehension, coursework and exams.

Single Assessment consists in the evaluation of the student’s learning administered at the end of the established period of time. This system of evaluation is available for all students that provide appropriate proof of their inability to regularly attend class. This assessment is determined based on the learning evidences proven through this evaluation.
